

Fall 2022 KI Fellowship Information Sheet

Internship Description

Each semester, KI recruits Georgetown students who are dedicated to social justice to work with local community groups in D.C. advocating for working people through its Organizing Internship and Research in Action Internship. Students will participate in an initial training the first week. Students will also be expected to partake in lunches with organizers and researchers working in social justice issues throughout their internship. Students receive on campus housing and a stipend for food, travel, and other needs during the fall.

The Organizing Internship provides an opportunity for students to observe the impact of community and labor organizing, support and contribute to ongoing campaigns and projects, and develop their own organizing skills. Meanwhile, the Research in Action Internship provides students the opportunity to learn from leaders in the world of workers' rights, support and contribute to ongoing campaigns and research projects, and develop their own research skills.

The KI Fall Internship will:

- Introduce students to key issues affecting workers and the labor movement;
- Provide an experiential learning opportunity through the internship;
- Develop students' organizing skills through on the ground work with dynamic campaigns
- Support local community groups working towards worker justice;
- And maintain a strong connection between Georgetown and local communities.

Through first-hand involvement in local campaigns, students will develop their own view of the challenges facing workers in the modern economy and the role of worker justice. From these experiences, students contribute to the next generation of the worker justice movement.

Benefits of the Internship

The KI Fall Organizing Internship is a paid internship.

Internship Placement Organizations

Students may indicate a preference for a particular placement organization, but this does not guarantee they will be assigned to their preferred placement (however, we will try to take preferences into account).

Potential* placements for the Internship this fall include:

- Collective Action for Safe Spaces
- DC Jobs with Justice
- Empower DC
- Ethiopian Community Center
- Good Jobs First
- Latino Economic Development Center
- Many Languages One Voice \(MLOV\)
- ONE DC
- Restaurant Opportunity Center DC
- Washington Lawyers Committee

Eligibility and Requirements of the Program

Work Expectations:

Generally, interns will work for a maximum of 10 hours per week. Work on the weekend and evening work may be required. Organizing work is highly dependent on the needs of each individual campaign and final schedules will be set by each organization.

Desired Skills/Qualifications

The applicant should:

- Have a strong interest in deepening their knowledge and understanding of social and economic justice and what this means for workers in the American economy;
- Demonstrate a willingness to engage with community members;
- Be a team player who works well with others;
- Be a self-starter who is motivated to tackle projects and the task at hand;
- Bring energy, creativity, enthusiasm, and an open mind to the work of organizing.

Prior organizing experience and familiarity with the history of the US labor movement is not necessary but will be considered as useful assets in favor of an applicant.
